How many times can you receive a citation for an offense before being prosecuted?

Eligible defendants will be offered community service and a referral to wrap-around services for a first offense. They will be offered increased community service and another referral to wrap-around services for a second offense. On the third citation, they will be prosecuted.

Who is eligible to complete service hours in lieu of prosecution?

To be eligible for community service alternatives, a defendant must be:

- (A) 18 years of age or older,
- (B) have no pending charges for a crime of violence or handgun offense
- (C) not currently on probation for parole for a crime of violence
- (D) have no outstanding warrants.

What does the criminal justice process look like after receiving your first citation?

Individuals who receive a citation from a law enforcement officer will be given an initial court date listed at the bottom of the citation. This court date will serve as an arraignment date where the defendant will be given a 30 - 45 day trial date. Defendants will also be advised to report immediately to the Commissioner's Office after the arraignment to be qualified for the Office of the Public Defender services before the trial date. At the arraignment date, an Assistant State's Attorney will offer eligible defendants an opportunity to complete community service instead of prosecution pending the trial date. They will refer defendants to voluntary wrap-around services as needed. If a defendant accepts the offer to complete community service and complete the hours by the trial date, the State's Attorney's Office will drop the case. If a defendant does not accept the offer or fails to complete their community service hours, the State's Attorney's Office will proceed with the case in the normal course on the trial date.

Who does the citation docket apply to?

All individuals who receive a citation in Baltimore City are eligible, even if they are not a resident of Baltimore City.
